

ATTENTION!

Rowan County Food Handling Establishment Owners and Operators!

The Rowan County Health Department is sponsoring a SERVSAFE® Serving Safe Food sanitation course for owners, operators and managers of food handling establishments. This is a nationally recognized 12-hour training course developed by the Educational Foundation of the National Restaurant Association. Training will be provided by Ms. Lisa Altmann, a certified SERVSAFE® instructor.

The course material is available in Chinese and Spanish upon request. Request must be made at time of registration so materials can be ordered.

The North Carolina Restaurant Rules grant a credit of two points on health inspections to food handling establishments which employ a full-time manager or other responsible employee who has successfully completed a state-approved food sanitation course within the past three years. SERVSAFE® Serving Safe Food is approved by the North Carolina Division of Environmental Health and used to train state and local food sanitation inspectors.
