Rowan County Emergency Services Chief Frank Thomason announced today that Mr. Bradley Dean will become the Department's Training Officer effective December 13. He was selected from among six finalists that consisted of internal and external candidates who participated in an assessment process earlier this month.

Dean currently serves as the Assistant Regional Emergency Response Coordinator for Wake Forest University Baptist Medical Center, where he directs the development and management of the regions' state medical response system and preparedness program. Prior to his current position, he served as Training Officer for Davidson County Emergency Services for 5 years. Dean holds a bachelors degree in business administration along with multiple management and special operations certificates from the National Fire Academy, North Carolina Rescue College and is a certified paramedic.

"We were extremely fortunate to have such a qualified group of individuals apply for this important position", Thomason said. "We look forward to Mr. Dean's expertise to further advance the department's training programs and goals for our Emergency Management, Fire, and EMS Divisions. "
